Beginning with a revenue estimate of over Rs 15 crore for FY 23, the target is to achieve Rs 100 crore in the next three years.

The collaboration will ensure that tailored treatment pathways and options are available for patients, who will be treated by a multi-disciplinary clinical team, spanning allopathy and Ayurveda. The teams will carry forward the shared belief of evidence-based practice.

The partnership will also strive to build path-breaking research in integrative medicine through clear, differentiated research methodology to establish credible evidence for Ayurveda's safety and efficacy.
